

OPERATIONAL NOTICE

Green and red passenger journeys at BNE

Update: January 2021

Brisbane Airport (BNE) will welcome the first quarantine-free New Zealand arrival on Thursday 7th January 2021.

OVERVIEW

Commencing on Thursday 7th January 2021, Air New Zealand will be operating quarantine-free (AKA 'green' flights) into Brisbane.

Passengers who travel on these specific flights, must have been within New Zealand (NZ) for the preceding 14 days and will therefore not be required to quarantine upon arrival at BNE.

The safe travel zone is currently one-way, and as such, all outbound flights will continue to be classified as red flights. Planning is underway with relevant government agencies to ensure we are prepared for a two-way travel bubble as soon as relevant restrictions are lifted.

IMPACT TO BNE

Brisbane Airport Corporation (BAC), Queensland Health (QHealth), Australian Border Force (ABF), Queensland Police Service (QPS), Dept. of Agriculture (DAWE) and the Airlines have been collaborating on the best way to implement these changes at BNE.

To facilitate these flights, the Brisbane Airport International Terminal will effectively be split into two zones, green (quarantine-free arrivals) and red (all other arrivals). Green flights are nominated flights from New Zealand and all flights from Norfolk Island.

Quarantine-free/green flights will operate from the northern concourse - Bays 78 & 79. Red flights will operate from the southern concourse – Bays 82 – 85. Bays 80 & 81 will be taken out of service due to the proximity to the QHealth processing area.

This will result in a change to the passenger journey for both quarantine-free arrivals and all other arrivals.

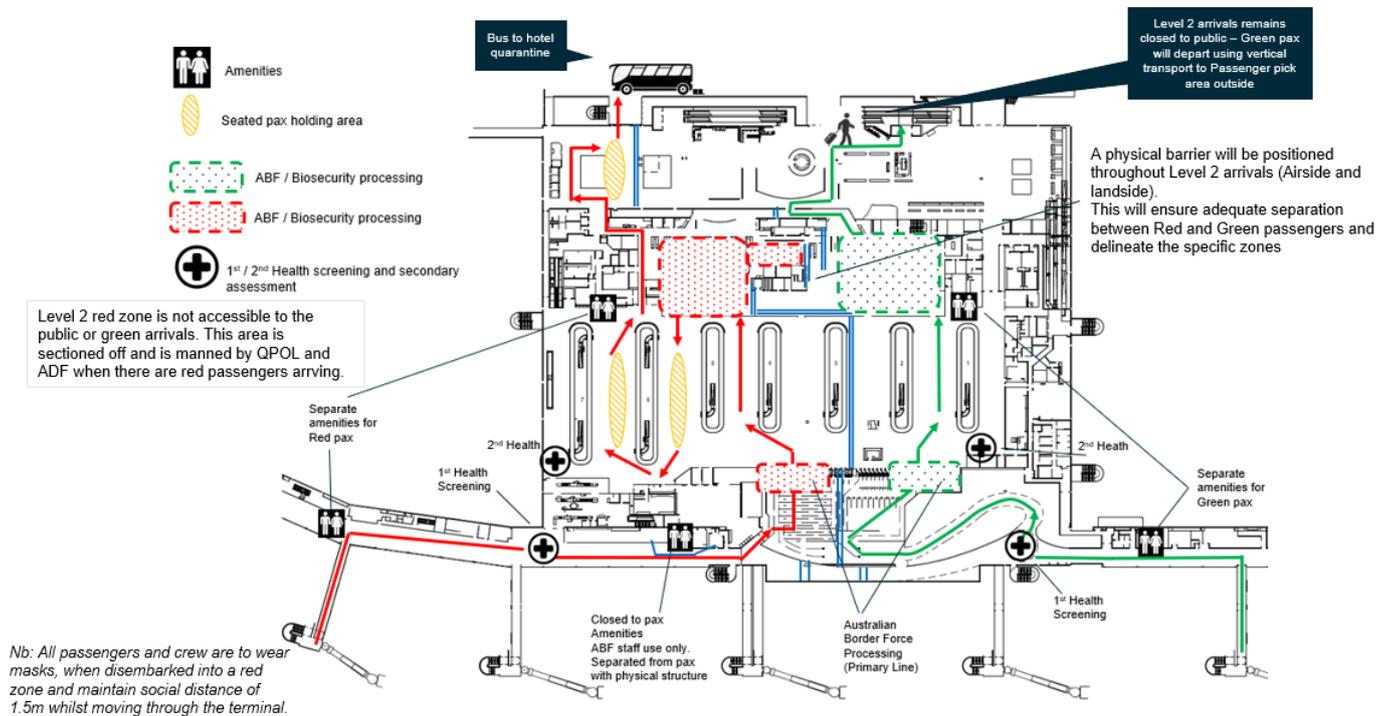

PASSENGER JOURNEY – GREEN VS. RED ARRIVING FLIGHTS

Below is a map of Level 2 of the International Terminal, showing the passenger journeys from airside to landside. The blue line indicates barriers that are in place to differentiate between the green zone and red zone. The green and red passenger journeys are marked in the respective colours.
